GEOFORUM

THE INTERNATIONAL MULTI-DISCIPLINARY JOURNAL FOR THE RAPID PUBLICATION OF RESEARCH RESULTS AND CRITICAL REVIEW ARTICLES IN THE PHYSICAL, HUMAN AND REGIONAL GEOSCIENCES

Managing Editor: JUDITH A REES, School of Geography and Earth Resources, University of Hull, Cottingham Road, Hull HU6 7RX, UK
Executive Editors: DEREK DIAMOND and DAVID K C JONES, London School of Economics and Political Science, Houghton Street, London WC2A 2AE, UK

Geoforum is concerned with all aspects of the management of the human environment; an area of study broadly defined to encompass urban and regional planning, industrial development, resource allocation and the management of physical environmental systems. It is a multi-disciplinary journal, global in outlook, integrative in approach and policy oriented. Geoforum provides rapid publication of original research papers, reports and reviews. The editors concentrate on publishing results of applied research of an international and interdisciplinary character, particularly that which promotes better understanding of the complex interrelationships that exist within and between the physical and socio-economic systems, and which helps forge links between the natural and social sciences. There are also special theme issues designed to provide a full treatment of topical, contentious and important questions.

A Selection of Papers
J REGULSKA (USA), Changing gender relations in urban space.
F E I HAMILTON (UK) & G ENYEDI (Hungary), East Central Europe in social and economic transition.
R M AUTY (UK), The impact of heavy-industry growth poles on South Korean spatial structure.

NOTES TO CONTRIBUTORS

1. Three copies of any article or note should be submitted, in a form suitable for sending to the printer. Copies must be typed on one side of the paper only, in double spacing. A fourth copy should be retained by the author.
2. Articles should be accompanied by a record of the author's name, address, and affiliation, and by an abstract, not exceeding 100 words, giving a clear indication of the nature and range of results in the paper.
3. Broad divisions and section headings should be clearly marked in the text where appropriate. Any quotations should appear in double marks, with longer quotations (exceeding 40 words) appearing indented in the text.
4. Bibliographical references should be carefully checked. In the case of books these should be complete in respect of edition, place and date of publication, and name of publisher; and in the case of journal articles (where given), volume and issue number, month and year, and inclusive page numbers. References to privately circulated or mimeographed material should also contain the name of the appropriate department or institution concerned.
5. The full mathematical workings necessary for justifying each step of the argument should accompany all articles of a mathematical character in order to assist the referees. These workings will not be published.
6. Diagrams should be clearly drawn, with clearly marked axes. These should be submitted on separate sheets, and accompanied by the basic statistics required for their preparation. Instructions for preparing camera-ready copy can be obtained from the editors.
7. Statistical tables should be submitted on separate sheets. These should be clearly headed and the reader should be able to understand the meaning of each row or column without hunting in the text for explanations of symbols etc. Units of measurement, base-dates for index numbers, geographical area covered and sources should be clearly stated. Authors are fully responsible for the accuracy of the data and for checking their proofs, but whenever they feel that the referee would have difficulty in testing the derivation of their statistics, they should provide supplementary notes on the methods used, which will not be published.
8. The positions of diagrams and tables should be clearly marked in the text; these will be adhered to wherever practicable.
9. All footnotes, including authors' acknowledgements etc., should be submitted on a separate sheet. These will be listed at the end of each article and should be numbered consecutively throughout.
10. Authors are expected to correct proofs expeditiously and to keep alterations to a minimum: the original typescript must be regarded as definitive and the publisher reserves the right to charge authors for excessive authors' corrections made in proof.
11. Because of the heavy pressure on space, the editor will give preference to articles which deal succinctly with an issue which is both important and clearly defined. In general articles should not exceed 30 double-spaced typewritten pages (10,000 words) including summary, tables, diagrams, notes, and references.
12. The editor particularly welcomes brief notes — e.g. dealing with a single point or setting out the results of research (with an offer to supply readers with details of statistical procedures on request).
13. Twenty-five reprints are provided free of charge. Further copies may be purchased at a reasonable price if ordered on the form which will accompany the author's proofs.

Comments on published articles

Anyone wanting to submit comments on an article is asked to start by sending a copy to the author, inviting him to send the commentator his observations, and in particular to explain any points on which the commentator has misunderstood what the author was saying. The commentator is asked to allow the author a reasonable time to reply before he sends anything to the editor, and to enclose any reply which he may have received from the author. If the editor accepts the Comment for publication, he will send one copy to the original author and give him a chance to make a short Reply in the same issue.

WORLD DEVELOPMENT: AIMS AND SCOPE

World Development is a multidisciplinary monthly journal of development studies. It seeks to explore ways of improving standards of living, and the human condition generally, by examining potential solutions to problems such as: poverty, unemployment, malnutrition, disease, illiteracy, lack of shelter, environmental degradation, inadequate scientific and technological resources, trade and payments imbalances, international debt, gender and ethnic discrimination, violation of human rights, militarism and civil conflict, and lack of popular participation in economic and political life.

We invite contributions that offer constructive ideas and analysis, and that highlight the lessons to be learned from the experiences of different nations, societies, and economies.

World Development welcomes contributions that discuss these issues in new and imaginative ways, particularly if they point to reform and policy recommendations.

World Development recognizes "development" as a process of change involving nations, economies, political alliances, institutions, groups, and individuals. Development processes occur in different ways and at all levels: inside the family, the firm and the farm; locally, provincially, nationally, and globally.

Our goal is to learn from one another, regardless of nation, culture, income, academic discipline, profession, or ideology. We hope to set a modest example of enduring global cooperation through maintaining an international dialogue and dismantling barriers to communication.
